How can you take better care of yourself while you help and heal the world? Dr. Suzie Carmack is on a mission to help anyone dedicated to public service -- in healthcare, emergency response, and education - to start taking care of themselves so that they can continue to do good in the world and live happier and healthier lives. She calls it Making a Well-Being Ultimatum. In this book, she shares her extensive research as a scholar and strategist in work/life balance with her own powerful story recovering from compassion fatigue -- a condition that is often undiagnosed among those who work in service-oriented fields. The result is a powerful call-to-action for anyone who keeps putting themselves and their self-care last in order to get the job done . If you or someone you know loves helping others, but often pushes through your own self-care needs to do so, encourage them to make a well-being ultimatum today in order to protect their well-being, and their ability to serve the world.
